

It has come to our attention that fraudulent information is being disseminated by individuals and/or organisations claiming to represent the International Solar Alliance (ISA) and Dr Ajay Mathur and are asking for money for solar policies. ISA has never undertaken, nor will it undertake such activities.

This type of fraud has been noted to occur online and via emails. We urge the public not respond to these and to other online services including bogus websites, social media accounts. If you have any concerns, doubts or receive suspicious communications, you should immediately report it to the nearest cybercrime cell. Or email us at info@isolaralliance.org

ISA will not be responsible for any consequences arising out of this criminal action.

The International Solar Alliance.
